

QUEBEC CITY, QUEBEC--(Marketwired - Nov 19, 2015) - Petrolia (TSX VENTURE:PEA) is pleased to announce that the work aiming to complete the cleaning of the Pétrolia Haldimand well number 4 has begun.

The operation should be completed within a couple of days and could lead to the launch of the long-term production test. This completion program is required as a result of the analysis of the initial production data which revealed that a certain portion of the high density drilling fluids remain in the well. Prior to commencing a long term production test, the Corporation must ensure that the well has first been properly cleaned.

Petrolia also advises that Isabelle Proulx is no longer employed by the Company.

About Pétrolia

Pétrolia is a junior oil and gas exploration company which owns interests in oil and gas licenses covering 16,000 km² (4 million acres), which represents almost 23% of the Québec territory under lease.
