CEO, Patrick Schorn commented:

"In the third quarter we operated the lowest number of active rigs since the start of the COVID pandemic, which was due to contract cancellations and suspensions caused by operators pushing out their anticipated work scope. This resulted in a sequential decrease in operating revenues of 30% to $59.2 million, and Adjusted EBITDA of $(10.1) million. Additionally, the third quarter results were negatively impacted by incremental costs directly related to Covid-19, amounting to $7.6 million and severance costs as a result of adjusting our headcount to the new market environment of $2.2 million. From this low point, with seven active rigs, we rebounded and at the date of this report, we have 11 active rigs after successful contract start-ups in the North Sea and in Malaysia. Tendering activity and price negotiations remained at an elevated level during the COVID pandemic, however day rates are under pressure as a function of the lower industry utilization. The total number of contracted jack-up rigs at the end of the third quarter 2020 was 346, down by four quarter on quarter. Out of these, 242 were modern units and 104 standard units, showing that modern units are continuing to gain market share.

Managing liquidity continues to be a priority and apart from optimizing working capital, Borr Drilling was able, as the only company in the drilling contractor space, to raise equity twice this year, with the share price trading above the issue price in both transactions, confirming the support from our shareholders and the potential of Borr Drilling's modern jack-up fleet.

The Mexico operating unit was the largest contributor to our quarterly results with five active rigs working for Pemex. We are pleased with the operational performance and the incremental production we delivered to PEMEX, as the wells drilled by the JV in Mexico made up a significant portion of the annual production increase reported by Pemex. As highlighted previously, the quarter we have had several interactions with Pemex regarding collections and the need for more timely payments. meeting in August with the full top management of Pemex resulted in strong assurances and commitments about future payments. The situation improved substantially, but we have recently experienced a slowdown in payments from Pemex due to operational challenges.

Our focus for the next months will be to continually increase our active rig fleet as we have done during the third quarter. Our unique assets combined with a first-class workforce will continue to provide differentiation in the market. The integrated projects in Mexico have confirmed that Borr is fully capable of adding value and that significant improvement in drilling productivity can be achieved for the operator by converting traditional contract drilling to integrated services.

As reported earlier, significant efforts have been made during the quarter to strengthen the financial position of the Company and extend the liquidity runway. Specific discussions are taking place with each of the creditor groups. The desired outcome, once completed, will include contributions from all creditors, by either a reduction or deferral of cash interest and other related terms, extension of maturities and a more flexible security package. Part of these negotiations is to restructure our corporate structure allowing a better ringfencing of entities with corresponding liens or different creditor groups. This would enable the lower leveraged components of the envisioned corporate structure to attract additional capital, thereby strengthen the group's liquidity and financial position. We are making good progress and we are hopeful to have this combined package of measures in place in the near future."
