16.09.2013 | Marketwired

PLATTEVILLE, CO -- (Marketwired - September 16, 2013) - Synergy Resources Corporation (NYSE MKT: SYRG) is providing an update as to the status of its operations in light of the flooding in Northern Colorado. Craig Rasmuson, VP of Operations, reported, "Our initial assessment reveals that only a small number of our existing vertical wells will be offline for an indeterminate amount of time until the well locations are fully accessible. The vast majority of our existing production is unaffected. Furthermore, the production from the first 4 horizontal wells on our Renfroe pad continues uninterrupted and final completion of the fifth well has been temporarily delayed until recompletion equipment can access the location. Drilling operations on the Leffler pad were not affected by the flooding and we are on schedule to spud the fourth well later this week."

Ed Holloway, President and CEO, of Synergy, added, "The impact to Synergy pales in comparison to the devastation to the communities and citizens along the Front Range and in Northern Colorado and we plan on joining in the relief efforts for local communities being organized by the Colorado Oil and Gas Association. We are thankful that our employees are safe and we are grateful for their dedication to their communities and contributions to Synergy."
