Royal Nickel Corporation (TS:RNX) is a mineral resource company focused primarily on the acquisition, exploration, evaluation and development of base metal and platinum group metal properties. Royal Nickel's principal asset is the Dumont Nickel Project located in the established Abitibi mining camp, in the municipalities of Launay and Trecesson, 25 kilometers northwest of Amos, Quebec. Royal Nickel's immediate focus is to continue to fast track the development of its principal property, the Dumont Nickel Project.

In November 2013, Royal Nickel noted that, having completed a positive feasibility study, the company's main focus was on putting together a financing package that would allow its Dumont Nickel Project to continue to move forward once it had completed the permitting process.

On September 26, 2013, the company announced that it had entered into an agreement with Hydro-Quebec for the construction of a high-voltage power transmission line to connect Royal Nickel's planned Dumont Nickel Project to Hydro-Quebec's existing electricity distribution network. The connection of the Dumont site to the existing network will require the installation of approximately 10 kilometers of 120 kV power lines.

In addition to the Dumont Nickel Project, the company has other exploration assets, consisting of the Jefmar property and the Marbridge property. The Jefmar property is located in the La Motte and Figuary townships, in the province of Quebec; and the Marbridge property is located 60 kilometers by road southeast of the Dumont Nickel Project and 40 kilometers northwest of Val-d'Or, Quebec. Minor exploration work was completed by the company on the Marbridge property, and no significant work was completed by the company on the Jefmar property during the quarter ended September 30, 2013.

Royal Nickel Corporation is headquartered in Toronto, Ontario, Canada.
