Historic Exploration Details [Link to Property Map]

The "Yuryi" boulder field, "hosts spectacular pyrope garnet chemistry with over 40% of the pyropes occurring within the G-10 field, suggesting that the diamond potential of the primary kimberlite source is excellent. The 'Yuryi' kimberlite returned 226 diamonds, including 62 macrodiamonds from 581 kilograms of processed kimberlite. One 0.12 carat diamond was also recovered from the sample"*** (A macrodiamond has 1 dimension greater than 0.5mm.)

The drill-tested Munn Lake Kimberlite varies in true thickness from 12m to 0.25m. A 42 kg sample, from two diamond drill core holes and one sonic drill hole, returned excellent microdiamond counts with a majority of the diamonds of very good white color and quality. 14 diamonds were noted, including 2 macrodiamonds and 12 microdiamonds***.

In addition to the indicator train that might be attributed to the diamondiferous Munn Lake Kimberlite at least four additional indicator trains with very robust kimberlitic mineral chemistry have been identified on the property. The sources for these indicator trains have yet to be identified. ****

The "North Margaret Lake Indicator Train" is approximately 300m wide by 7km in length and results suggest the definition of an up-ice cut-off point to the indicator train. Individual samples returned up to 159 indicators. ****
