VANCOUVER, British Columbia, April 13, 2015 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Lomiko Metals Inc. (TSX-V:LMR) (OTCQX:LMRMF) (FSE:DH8B) ("Lomiko") is a founding shareholder of Graphene Energy Storage Devices ("Graphene ESD") and controls 40% of this R&D company (link). On February 23, 2015, Graphene ESD signed a research agreement with the Research Foundation of Stony Brook University (SBU) (link). Graphene ESD Corp. will partner with the SBU Center for Advanced Sensor Technologies (Sensor CAT) to develop new supercapacitors designs for energy storage. As a result of this new development, Graphene ESD will not seek to raise further funds through an IPO.

In order to better organize the company's assets, Lomiko Metals Inc. will transfer its shares in Graphene ESD to its 100%-owned subsidiary Lomiko Technologies. Lomiko is currently considering various options to launch Lomiko Technologies that would best reward shareholders. The priority is to minimize disruption of the progress, current work and momentum of the two companies.

Lomiko Highlights:

- Exploration of three High Purity Flake Graphite properties in Quebec.
- Testing of graphite material for suitability to various market applications.
- Development of markets for Graphene 3D Lab products (10.43% ownership by Lomiko) such as Black Magic3D and Nylon 680 Filament.
- Graphene ESD graphene supercapacitor research project with Stony Brook University.
- Lomiko Technology plans to manufacture, market and distribute the licensed LED power converters and USB charging systems for the growing LED lighting and re-charging device markets.
