

Archer Daniels Midland Company (NYSE: ADM) announced that it will open in October a new, state-of-the-art flavor creation, application and customer service facility in Cranbury, New Jersey. The 15,700-square-foot site will include lab, office and meeting space—including dedicated lab space for mint and oral care products—and will house a staff of flavorists and applications technologists.

“Our customers expect a lot from working with the premier flavor company in the world, and this facility will help us continue to meet—and exceed—their needs,” said Ken Campbell, president of ADM’s WILD Flavors business. “This new facility will be easy to reach for major customers, it will feature state-of-the-art equipment and resources—including a customer innovation center—and it will be staffed with talented, dedicated flavorists and application technologists who are ready and eager to work side by side with customers to meet their needs. This facility will help us continue to grow WILD Flavor’s sales and ensure that we remain the first and best choice among global flavor companies.”
