

Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. Issues Declaration of Independence

04.01.2016 | CNW

The alternative to Suncor's bid is compelling and clear: Independence

CALGARY, Jan. 4, 2016 /CNW/ - Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. (TSX: COS) (OTCQX: COSWF) ("COS" or "Canadian Oil Sands") issued the following declaration that shareholders' interests are best served by remaining independent as a unique, highly valuable company when Suncor Energy Inc.'s ("Suncor") hostile bid expires on January 8, 2016:

Dear Fellow Shareholders,

Acting together in the short term means we can remain independent for the long term.

Suncor's substantially undervalued bid is set to lapse, and when it does they say they will walk away. For all of us, as shareholders, this scenario reveals a far more compelling and valuable alternative: Independence.

Canadian Oil Sands wasn't looking to sell itself, and Suncor's opportunistic bid does not make us conclude that we should now. Your board, with the help of external legal and financial advisors, has considered a full range of alternatives against the Suncor offer, including a full or partial sale to other parties, and a royalty financing. Those alternatives deliver substantially lower risk-adjusted value than the existing assets. Independence is, by far, the better decision.

The principles that guide our investment in Canadian Oil Sands remain strong: A valuable one-of-a-kind asset, a share price poised to rise with the next uplift in oil prices and generations worth of reserves. You invested in Canadian Oil Sands for a pure-play exposure to oil prices, and you have held your investment through unprecedented hard times in the energy sector. Now is the time to secure the future benefits of an independent Canadian Oil Sands:

COS has the financial resources to weather the current downturn.

- We can cover operating and capital costs and pay the dividend in a low oil price environment.
- Canadian Oil Sands has financial flexibility with access to most of a $1.5 billion credit facility. COS' credit facility does not mature until 2019 and COS has no bond maturities until 2019.

COS' key asset, Syncrude, has entered a new low-cost era of production.

- Syncrude has reduced costs in 2015 by more than $1.3 billion – even more than originally estimated. Operating expenses per barrel are estimated to fall a further eight percent below 2015 levels.
- Syncrude's major capital projects were completed below budget and ahead of schedule, providing decades of production at low sustaining costs.
- The joint venture owners have endorsed a plan led by Imperial Oil and ExxonMobil to increase production. Production is expected to rise in 2016 by 15 percent over 2015.

COS has significant inherent value as an independent company.

- Oil prices will recover. No one is certain when, but these levels are not sustainable.
- COS is uniquely positioned to benefit as a pure play investment with very high leverage to oil prices. Its shares have a 98 percent correlation to oil prices.

- Shareholders have more upside owning 100 percent of COS' reserves than less than 8 percent of Suncor's.

The Board continues to take steps to lower costs including the reduction in the number and pay of Directors and the level of G&A expense at COS. Our target for 2016 is a 20 percent reduction to better align with Syncrude cost reductions and the reality of today's oil prices.

Make no mistake, Suncor will try to instill fear in the final hours before its bid expires. But remember, Suncor will only resort to this tactic because it desperately wants what you have: ownership of the largest stake in an irreplaceable, integrated, long-life oil sands project that is poised to return significant value. It is clear a full share of an independent COS is more valuable than a quarter share of Suncor.

Sincerely,

Don Lowry

Chairman of the Board
