

Vancouver, BC / TheNewswire / October 17, 2016 - Durango Resources Inc. (TSX.V-DGO), (the "Company" or "Durango") reports that further to its news release of September 29, 2016, it has made arrangements to undertake site visits to its limestone properties located on the northwest coast of British Columbia.

A small exploration crew is poised to evaluate the logistics for a sampling program on its wholly owned Smith Island and Mayner's Fortune properties. The past producing Smith Island claims are located 6km southwest of Lelu Island, the proposed site of a pending $36 billion LNG facility that recently received conditional approval of the federal government. The Mayner's Fortune claims are located approximately 7.5km southwest of Terrace, B.C., along the CN rail route between Terrace and Kitimat, B.C., where the proposed Royal Dutch Shell Consortium $40 billion LNG facility awaits a final investment decision.

Marcy Kiesman, CEO comments: "Durango is fortunate to have multiple properties positioned for discovery in its portfolio which starkly contrasts with many junior exploration companies. The management team has worked hard over the past few years to diversify its holdings and acquire projects at various exploration stages to mitigate shareholder risk. Our team looks forward to visiting the past producing project of Smith Island, mapping the extent of the multiple limestone units at Mayner's Fortune, and meeting with local parties of interest and land users in the area."
