Imports and price of anthracite at 23-month high, AIM Exploration (OTC: AEXE) $AEXE proceeds with its project in Peru, estimates coal capacity shipments.

HENDERSON, December 19, 2016 - Attention, to our valued shareholders and investors and general coal industry audience:

As The Company progresses in preparation for extracting, transporting, and loading of coal, we wish to provide information to our valued investors of the strategic port of Salaverry, is located 17km from the city of Trujillo. Latitude -8° -9' -54' S, Longitude -79° 0' -38' W.

Its Cargo Pier water depth meets our demands for coal shipments at 31 - 35 feet (9.4 - 10 meters). Tide information is updated daily. Tug assist is on-ready, and quarantine stations with Deratt Cert (Ship sanitation certification) is present. Air, Radio, and Telephone communications are on-ready.

"Anthracite is necessary for steel and high-grade metal forging products. The prices currently range between $220 - $400USD per ton, and we have been monitoring the open-market prices, on sxcoal.com and alibaba.com, and they have been on the rise month over month. As the economy expands and with energy demands of G8 and emerging markets are unilaterally in line, we do not see this trend to plateau, rather it is continuing to put price pressure on un-replenishable energy resources."

James Robert Todhunter, President and CEO of AIM Exploration

It is a major port and has met our potential client demands for Ship repairs, with refueling oil and diesel oil, water/provisioning/engine maintenance. Loading of the coal will be done in wharves and on-anchor. Mobile cranes and 24 ton Lists are available for AIM.

There are neither tide entrance restrictions nor overhead limits.

The Company has studied and consulted with its advisors, clients, and the port, and are pleased that the port is appropriate for year round loading and can provide year round shipping of coal. This efficiency allows the Company to provide coal in a cost effective, and nimble on-demand manner.

Coal supply chain approach is how the Company manages its availability. We are developing clear metrics highlighting our coal inventories at mines and the Port, the arrival date of vessels, the amount of coal being shipped from our mines. The port is ready for coal shipping; cargo shipping constitutes 42% of its monthly usage.

AIM is positioned to ship 2 to 4 shiploads of anthracite coal per month, currently the spot price exceeds $250.00 MT.
