According to the Complaint, throughout the Class Period, Asanko made false and/or misleading statements, and/or failed to disclose that: Asanko Gold's Mineral Resource Estimates are flawed; that some of the Company's resources models exhibit signs that they have been "smeared," which would cause estimates of their ore contents to be inflated; and that as a result of the above, Asanko's public statements were materially false and misleading at all relevant times. On May 31, 2017, research firm Muddy Waters published a report asserting, among other things, that: Asanko made investments based on flawed geology in Nkran, its satellite pits, and Esaase that Muddy Waters believes "will never be recovered;" and that there are indicia that some of the Company's resources models have been "smeared," which would cause estimates of their ore contents to be inflated. Following this news, Asanko shares decreased in value, which caused investors harm according to the Complaint.
