Vancouver, BC., , Sept. 19, 2017 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- A. Paul Gill, CEO of Lomiko Metals Inc. (TSXV: LMR, OTCQB:LMRMF, FSE: DH8C, the “Company”) is the guest today on the Uptick Network Stock Day Podcast with host Everett Jolly. In the interview, Mr. Gill discusses the increasing need of graphite in the technology industry and what the demand means for the mining companies in this industry. Mr. Gill elaborates on the potential growth in the market for Smart Home and IoT devices and how the Company is taking advantage of this growing industry. Mr. Gill compares Lomiko Metals to competitive companies in the graphite exploration sector and explains the stages of development for Lomiko and its competitive advantages. Furthermore, Mr. Gill discusses the recent financing efforts, how important this funding was to the company.

“We have identified an incredible opportunity for graphite within the Electric Vehicle Industry and early investors will be inside the industry when it takes off. These new industries come along once in a generation – personal computers, the internet, smartphones. What if you could be inside Bill Gates garage and see a new industry forming?” States CEO A. Paul Gill.
