2019 Guidance

The Company's 2019 budget was developed using a flat $50 NYMEX oil and $3 Henry Hub natural gas price assumption, anticipated gas processing expansion in the D-J Basin and assumed continued gas processing allocations as the system reaches designed capacity. Importantly, this budget has been developed to balance operating cash flows with total corporate expenditures and is expected to generate free cash flow. Under this plan, total capital expenditures in 2019 are projected to be between $425 million and $450 million, comprised primarily of operated drilling and completion costs, limited leasehold acquisition costs and selected non-operated drilling and completion costs. This capital program is expected to deliver a year over year increase in production of approximately 20%. Both the drilling and completion cadences will be interrupted during the year in an effort to align production growth with the Basin's gas processing expansion.

2019 Guidance

Production (Boe/d)	59,000 - 62,000
Oil %	42% - 45%
Total Capital Expenditures ($mil)	$425 - $450

Management Comment

Lynn A. Peterson, Chairman and CEO of SRC Energy Inc., commented, “SRC’s operations soundly delivered on its 2018 expectations, while navigating through several macro issues beyond our direct control. While the year saw progress in the continued expansion of midstream infrastructure, gas processing capacity in the Basin still lags production and directly impacts our operations. Commodity volatility has impacted the entire energy sector and investor focus has shifted from growth to sustainable free cash flow and financial discipline. Continued uncertainties surrounding Colorado politics have caused ongoing concerns within the investment community. However, from an operational standpoint our team has done an exceptional job working within the Weld County communities where we operate, and SRC’s development activities have not been materially impacted by the political winds."

Peterson continued, "The Company's 2019 budget and guidance that we announced today takes into consideration the issues noted above and is designed to deliver value to our shareholders while maintaining SRC's sound financial position and continuing to develop our high-quality inventory. We continue to work with all elected officials and remain optimistic about our vibrant industry."
