- Guyana Goldfields' share price falls below $1 mark; hits new 5-year low as shareholders sell off shares
- Analyst downgrades company, notes "Inadequate Financing in Place and Execution Hurdles Too High"
- Shareholders are right to wonder how much worse will things get?

TORONTO, April 4, 2019 - Guyana Goldfields Inc. (TSX: GUY) ("Guyana Goldfields" or the "Company") shareholders ("Concerned Shareholders"), together owning not less than 5% of the issued and outstanding shares of the Company, and fellow shareholders to the damning market reaction to the Company's release of its new life of mine plan and technical

Both the new life of mine plan and technical report (which provides disclosure on the Company's updated mineral resource and mineral reserve estimates) have been met with market cynicism, and have triggered longtime shareholders to abandon the Company and caused a massive drop in share price.

From March 26—the day the Company announced its Q4, 2018 and 2018 full-year results and its new life of mine plan—to March 28, share price dropped 14.4%. On March 29, upon the Company's release of its technical report, share price dropped another 10.2%. In other words, another $60 million in shareholder value was destroyed in just a few days.

On April 3, 2019, the Company's shares closed at below the $1.00 mark for the first time in five years.

Based on public filings, significant institutional shareholders of the Company have recently sold over 20 million shares (representing approximately 12% of the outstanding shares).

"The market has clearly lost confidence in the board and management of Guyana Goldfields and shareholders are voting with their feet. The Company is in a tailspin and no one there has shown an inclination or ability to pull back on the throttle and get the Company back on track," said Patrick Sheridan, one of the largest shareholders and founder, former Executive Chairman and former director of the Company. "None of the actions the board has taken in the past year—including adding new board members and management, adding or commencing new development—has halted the value destruction. How bad does this get? Immediate change is needed."

A review of the recent actions of the current board and management to 'fix' the problems they have created, clearly demonstrates that their 'corrective' actions are only serving to compound the problem and destroy more shareholder value.

GUYANA GOLDFIELDS' PATH TO VALUE DESTRUCTION
Date:	Announcement:	Market Reaction:
July 16, 2018	Guyana Goldfields Releases Second Quarter Production Results	-22%
October 30, 2018	Guyana Goldfields Inc. Reports Third Quarter 2018 Operational and Financial Results	-47%
March 26, 2019	Guyana Goldfields Inc. Updates Resource Model & Life of Mine Plan	-14.4%
March 29, 2019	Guyana Goldfields Inc. Files Technical Report	-10.2%

On Tuesday, a Scotiabank analyst downgraded the stock suggesting that the Company's debt repayment schedule of $8 million repayable at a rate of $5 million per quarter is too much for the Company to handle given that the new mine plan accelerates the schedule for the underground development which shortens the cash flow generation from the open pits and the loss of reserves.

"We are downgrading Guyana Goldfields given we feel the company has insufficient capital to execute its own mine plan and extend its current debt repayment schedule," notes the report. "CEO Scott Caldwell said twice on the March 20 conference call that at today's spot prices the company can generate enough cash through the life of mine plan, the transition to the underground, all the activities they have including corporate G&A, servicing the debt and exploration...We do not see this is possible without a departure from the new technical report that would see underground development deferred and open pit mine life extended."

The Concerned Shareholders, in a March 20, 2019 news release, indicated that they were concerned that the Company might manipulate data to justify poor results. For that reason, the Concerned Shareholders engaged a respected independent international consulting practice specializing in the resource sector to provide a third-party review and analysis of the Company's resource model and new life of mine plan. The third-party review is expected to be completed in advance of the upcoming general meeting and special meeting of shareholders.

Change is Needed.

The Concerned Shareholders have a plan to halt the value destruction at Guyana Goldfields by rebuilding trust with stakeholders, optimizing operations, and pursuing a value maximizing transaction.
