Following its formation on August 21, 2019, the Sovereign Council of The Sudan has moved quickly to appoint a predominantly civilian government. The Sovereign Council and Sudan's new Prime Minister, Mr. Abdullah Hamdok, and his Government, have embarked upon an aggressive plan of economic reform and domestic and international political normalization. These efforts are supported and encouraged by the international community, with the overall objective to bring Sudan back into the international marketplace and achieve national economic recovery and democracy.

The political change in Sudan is enhancing the prospects of the Company's Block 14 gold project. Evolving economic policies and political stability are increasing funding options to bring Block 14 into production. Discussions with the new government of Sudan and potential investors towards this goal are ongoing.

Block 14 is one of the best development-ready projects in Africa and demonstrates the potential of Sudan to develop into one of the largest commercial gold producers in Africa.
