About Olivine Mountain

The 3,021.87-hectare Olivine Mountain Property (the "Property") is located approximately 25km northwest of Princeton, British Columbia. The Property is underlain by rocks of the Tulameen Mafic/Ultramafic Complex which hosts two adjacent magnetite deposits, Lodestone Mountain and Tanglewood Hill, both less than a kilometre outside of the Property boundary, and hosted within same geological formations found within the Property. Potential target metals include but aren't limited to copper, nickel, platinum-group metals, cobalt, and gold.

In 2019 GSPR completed roughly 1200 metres of reconnaissance exploration drilling consisting of seven (7) drill holes. Five (5) of the seven (7) holes encountered multiple intersections of copper-mineralization, the results of this drill program can be found in a GSPR news release dated January 15th, 2020. To date this is the only exploration drilling known to have been completed within the Property Boundary.

In 2018 GSPR completed an airborne magnetic and TEM survey, a nine square kilometre (9 km<sup>2</sup>) soil geochemical sampling program consisting of approximately 1750 soil samples, and a historical data compilation program. The work performed by GSPR in 2018 was used to identify the 2019 drill targets.

Several surface showings and targets within the Property remain untested and warrant future exploration work.
