The Company plans to use the net proceeds from the Offering for research and development, investment capital and general corporate expenses, as set out in the final Prospectus.

"This financing not only strengthens our cash position but demonstrates strong investor confidence in our innovative business model, our momentum and our growth prospects. Eric Sprott and Palisades Goldcorp were early investors and their lead orders in this financing are a testament to their support," said Denis Laviolette, Executive Chairman and President of GoldSpot. "We are well positioned to capitalize on our global client pipeline while demonstrating our ability to successfully execute on our acquisition strategy."

The Offering remains subject to the final approval of the TSX Venture Exchange.
