"David has more than 30 years of diverse industry experience, and he has deep familiarity with our Canadian operations from a people, operational and business perspective," said Keatley, who leads Weyerhaeuser's timberlands operations across North America. "We're excited to have him step into this important leadership role and help us continue to build on our strong relationships with our communities, customers and other partners across Canada."

"I also want to thank Fred for his more than 40 years of outstanding service with Weyerhaeuser," Keatley added. "He has had a profound impact across our Canadian operations as a champion of people, innovation and operational excellence, and he has dedicated significant energy to promoting and advancing our industry through his participation on many boards and associations across Canada. Although he will be greatly missed on our team, we wish him all the best in his well-deserved retirement."
