"Everything is set for the gradual recommissioning of the Beaufor mine," said Jean-Marc Lacoste, President and Chief Executive Officer of Monarch. "We have continued to lay the groundwork for recommissioning, which we completed in the third quarter at the Beaufor mine and will be finalized at the Beacon mill in the fourth quarter. In preparation for recommissioning, some 24,000 tonnes of ore have been mined and set aside for the Beacon mill. The next step is to process waste material to ensure that the mill is operating properly, and then we will move ahead with processing the ore and pouring the first gold bar, which is still scheduled for June 2022. That will mark the beginning of a new era for the Beaufor Mine, with a new operating strategy to boost production capacity above the mine's historical production level while ensuring profitability."

"We also continue to be very active on the exploration side, and we expect to drill 60,000 metres on our four properties in 2022. In the third quarter, the Beaufor mine continued to show excellent high-grade results at depth and near surface. The Swanson project generated better-than-expected results, prompting us to double the size of the drilling program to 10,000 metres, and on the McKenzie Break project, we recently started a new drilling program to follow up on the positive results of the previous program. At the Croinor Gold project, the resource estimate is currently being updated to take into account all the work done to date and a report is expected in the next few weeks."
