"Chevron is committed to supporting first responders, local governments, and non-profit organizations as they fight to contain fires across Taos and Colfax counties in northern New Mexico," said Mark Urfer, manager of Chevron's Questa Site in Questa, New Mexico, which has employees, contractors, and community partners affected by the situation. In addition, the company will match qualifying donations to wildfire relief efforts made by employees and retirees, as well as provide financial contributions to non-profit organizations where employees volunteer.

"Through our legacy companies, Chevron has been active in New Mexico since the early 1920s," said Ryder Booth, vice president of Chevron North America Exploration & Production Company's Mid-Continent Business Unit, which includes the company's significant Permian Basin assets in New Mexico and Texas. "Our heartfelt thoughts are with every New Mexican affected by fires in the state, including the firefighters and other responders working tirelessly in challenging conditions."
