About Aclara

Aclara Resources is a Rare Earths company with a development project in Chile, and is listed on the TSX (TSX:ARA).

Aclara is initiating the development of its resources through a project called the Penco Module, which covers a surface area of approximately 600 hectares, and which hosts ionic clays rich in rare earth elements. Aclara is currently focused on the development and future construction and operation of the Penco Module, which will aim to produce a rare earth concentrate through a processing plant fed by clays from nearby deposits. Aclara's extraction process offers several environmentally attractive attributes such as: no requirement to blast, crush, or mill the feedstock; no tailings facility; minimal water consumption due to a high level of water recirculation; amenability to leaching with a fertilizer; and containing no radioactivity. In parallel with the development of the Penco Module, the Company intends to identify additional opportunities to increase future rare earth element production via intensive greenfield exploration programs and the subsequent development of additional project "modules" within the Company's concessions.
