Buscando Update On Portfolio Expansion, Exploration Launch And Closing The First Tranche Of The Private Placement

17.06.2025 | GlobeNewswire

Vancouver, June 17, 2025 - Buscando Resources Corp. ("Buscando" or the "Company") (CSE: BRCO), a North American mineral exploration company focused on critical metals and the rapidly growing sector of natural hydrogen, is pleased to provide a comprehensive corporate update highlighting recent portfolio expansion, ongoing field activities, and key upcoming milestones. The Company also confirms the successful closing of the first tranche of its previously announced non-brokered private placement financing (the "Private Placement"), as disclosed on April 29, 2025.

Recent Highlights:

- Expanded exploration plan being developed to incorporate the results from the recent advanced airborne magnetic survey and inversion modelling to model targets on the Foggy Mountain property and review and compilation of historic data on the nearby Star Project;
- The proposed exploration project on both the Foggy Mountain and Star Projects is anticipated to begin in mid-July;
- The Company has closed the acquisition of Element One Hydrogen Ltd ("Element One"); and
- Closing of first tranche of the Private Placement, strengthening its financial position to advance exploration and development initiatives.

"We are entering a new phase of Buscando's growth story," stated Brad Kitchen, President of Buscando Resources. "From natural hydrogen to critical metals, the Company is building a forward-facing portfolio aligned with long-term energy and security priorities in North America. Management has built early momentum by acquiring assets and executing early-stage exploration programs and is now focused on execution and creating value through discovery and innovation."

Corporate Update

The Company has expanded its asset base through the acquisition of Element One and its two North American-based projects with natural hydrogen and critical mineral potential. Element One is a 100%-owned subsidiary of Buscando and will be the vehicle for expanded research and further acquisitions in the exciting field of natural hydrogen.

The newly acquired Union Bay project in Alaska and the Star project in British Columbia collectively span over 4,800 hectares and offer dual potential: exploration for critical minerals - such as copper, nickel, and PGEs - and naturally occurring geologic hydrogen.

At the same time, Buscando has completed an early-season exploration program at its Foggy Mountain Project in British Columbia. The Company is currently analyzing results-including advanced magnetics, inversion modelling, and target generation-which will guide upcoming geochemical surveys and potential drilling campaigns aimed at identifying new zones of mineralization in this highly prospective region.

This dual-focus strategy positions Buscando uniquely at the intersection of two macro trends: the global race for critical minerals supply and the accelerating interest in clean hydrogen as a next-generation energy solution. With geoscientific collaboration underway-including partnerships with research institutions and access to US and Canadian government-supported natural hydrogen and critical mineral recovery and extraction programs, Buscando aims to validate the presence of hydrogen-hosting systems on its properties. In the coming months, Buscando will:

- Release interpretations from the Foggy Mountain geophysical program;
- Launch desktop and field assessments targeting new hydrogen-accretive assets in multiple locations across North American;
- Advance technology development and partnership discussions for Element One; and
- Finalize planning for next-phase exploration at priority targets.
