Forward-looking statements involve inherent risks and uncertainties, and important factors (many of which are beyond the Company's control) that could cause actual results to differ materially from those set forth in the forward-looking statements, including the following: changes in crude oil and natural gas prices, the pace of drilling and completions activity on the Company's current properties and properties pending acquisition; infrastructure constraints and related factors affecting the Company's properties; general economic or industry conditions, whether internationally, nationally and/or in the communities in which the Company conducts business, including any future economic downturn, cost inflation, supply chain disruptions, the impact of continued or further inflation, disruption in the financial markets, changes in the interest rate environment and actions taken by OPEC and other oil producing countries as it pertains to the global supply and demand of, and prices for, crude oil, natural gas and NGLs; ongoing legal disputes over, and potential shutdown of, the Dakota Access Pipeline; the Company's ability to identify and consummate additional development opportunities and potential or pending acquisition transactions, the projected capital efficiency savings and other operating efficiencies and synergies resulting from the Company's acquisition transactions, integration and benefits of property acquisitions, or the effects of such acquisitions on the Company's cash position and levels of indebtedness; changes in the Company's reserves estimates or the value thereof; disruption to the Company's business due to acquisitions and other significant transactions; changes in local, state and federal laws, regulations or policies that may affect the Company or the Company's industry (such as the effects of tax law changes, and changes in environmental, health and safety regulation and regulations addressing climate change, and trade policy and tariffs); conditions of the securities markets; risks associated with the Company's 3.625% convertible senior notes due 2029 (the "Convertible Notes"), including the potential impact that the Convertible Notes may have on the Company's financial position and liquidity, potential dilution, and that provisions of the Convertible Notes could delay or prevent a beneficial takeover of the Company; the potential impact of the capped call transactions undertaken in tandem with the Convertible Notes issuances, including counterparty risk; increasing attention to environmental, social and governance matters; the Company's ability to raise or access capital on acceptable terms; cyber-incidents could have a material adverse effect on the Company's business, financial condition or results of operations; changes in accounting principles, policies or guidelines; events beyond the Company's control, including a global or domestic health crisis, acts of terrorism, political or economic instability or armed conflict in oil and gas producing regions; and other economic, competitive, governmental, regulatory and technical factors affecting the Company's operations, products and prices.

The Company has based any forward-looking statements on its current expectations and assumptions about future events.
