Samuel Pelaez, the Company's President, CEO, CIO, and Director stated: "October was a volatile month. History confirms that October is the month with the highest volatility, and this year proved no exception. In spite of this, gold and copper prices rose strongly for the month, with oil prices posting a minor decline. Equities generally tracked the commodities, albeit with significant intra-month volatility spikes - except for gold equities which were negative for the month, following two strong months of outperformance. As we near the end of the weak seasonal Fall period, at Olive we are actively scouting opportunities for investment into the end of the year. The first months of the new year are historically associated with strong performance for the commodity complex."

Derek Macpherson, the Company's Executive Chairman stated: "Despite a challenging market, and some of Olive's best performing stocks in 2025 pulling back, Olive was able to weather the volatility, with investments only down 4.9%, as other investments outperformed. This speaks to the quality of Olive's overall portfolio."
