David Mitchell CEO American Atomics stated "We want to offer our congratulations to CEO Greyson Buckingham and the entire DISA team on this incredible groundbreaking milestone. I encourage everyone to read the DISA press release (link above) to get the full scope and understanding of this very significant accomplishment. We look forward to working together with DISA to utilize and advance their technology on our projects in the US."

Greyson Buckingham CEO of DISA Technologies commented "This license represents a pivotal regulatory milestone, not just for DISA, but for the entire U.S. nuclear fuel supply chain. It validates a new, sustainable approach to remediating legacy uranium sites while recovering valuable resources safely and efficiently. We're pleased to have the opportunity to work alongside American Atomics on several projects, in conjunction with this license approval."

Uranium Added to the US Critical Minerals list.

On November 7th the US Department of Interior added uranium to their Critical Minerals List which guides federal investment, permitting strategies, and shapes the government's broader minerals strategies.
