

Mosaic Announces Idling Of Araxá And Patrocínio Facilities And Pursuit Of Sale Of Araxá Assets

12:30 Uhr | ACCESS Newswire

TAMPA, April 8, 2026 - As part of its efforts to reduce costs and redeploy capital, The Mosaic Company today announced it will begin the process of idling and demobilizing its Araxá Mining and Chemical Complex and idling related mining activities at the Patrocínio Complex in Brazil. These actions will result in workforce reductions at both sites. All activities during the idling period will be conducted in full compliance with applicable safety, environmental, and tailings dam regulations.

In addition, Mosaic plans to pursue the sale of Araxá assets, while at the same time continuing development of the Niobium opportunity at Patrocínio. The company is nearing the completion of technical assessment work related to Niobium at Patrocínio, including sampling and analysis.

Mosaic expects idling of the facilities to reduce annual phosphate production at Mosaic Fertilizantes by approximately 1 million tonnes. The impact on adjusted EBITDA is expected to be limited amid elevated sulfur prices, excluding one-time closure costs. Following completion of a potential transaction, annual capital expenditure and operating expenses are expected to decline by approximately $20 to $30 million and $70 to $80 million, respectively. The company anticipates recording a pre-tax book impact of $350 to $400 million in the first quarter of 2026, with $275 to $300 million for the impairment on assets held for sale and other asset write-offs, and the balance related to severance, contract termination costs, and other idling costs, subject to final accounting determinations.

"We believe idling the facilities and pursuing a potential sale is the right path forward," said Bruce Bodine, President and Chief Executive Officer of Mosaic. "This decision reflects Mosaic's continued focus on discipline around capital allocation and returns. We are grateful for our employees at both locations - their years of dedication to safety and contributions to helping the world grow the food it needs have been critical to our success."
